

ABSTRACT

Method and apparatus for detecting and locating leaks in a fluid carrying pipe using correlation based techniques is described. Two input signals are detected from the fluid carrying pipe, the phase of the input signals in the frequency domain is analyzed to provide at least one filter, the input signals are filtered and cross-correlation is performed on the filtered signals.